The Student Advertising Manager chooses his or her assistant. The School of Journalism provides the scholarship funds for the positions listed below. These applications require several long answers. Please review the questions in the forms and then submit additional documents or items as requested.

The scholarship money will be deposited into the awardee’s bursar account. Half the funds will be deposited in the fall. The EIC will certify that an editorial board member has met performance standards during the fall semester before the scholarship funds for the second semester are released. The Student Advertising manager will certify that his or her assistant has met performance standards. Both the EIC and Student Advertising Manager should avoid personal favoritism in appointing board members and assistants, although the board recognizes that a newsroom is a place where strong bonds of friendship and loyalty develop.
